- In each case (a-e) find the two books the people could buy. Write the letters of the books in the boxes next to the people's names.
- Some of the books can be chosen more than once.

No.	Book 1	Book 2		The readers
7/8				a) Max is thinking of studying science after he finishes school and he's always on the lookout for books which can teach him something new in this field. He also enjoys reading about young creative people in faraway places who use their talents to make a difference.
9/10				b) Fiona is interested in physics and how the world works, so she is looking for a book that could help answer some of her questions. She also wants to buy a book for her mum's birthday, something which combines her mum's love of detective stories and her interest in non-European cultures.
11/12				c) Sam has just finished reading all the Harry Potter novels on his new e-book and has enjoyed this very much. He can't wait to download another fantasy novel. He is also looking for a book that will help him create his own comic for a school project in art.
13/14				d) Simran has been playing football on a girl's team for some years now and she loves reading any kind of book in which football plays a role. She's also trying to show other girls how important it is to stand up for themselves and is looking for some inspiration.
15/16				e) Tyrone loves historical murder mysteries and is looking for one which was published as a comic. He would also like to have some background knowledge of comic-book writing so that he can enjoy this genre even more.

	A) Terry Pratchett, Unseen Academicals The wizards at Ankh-Morpork's Unseen University are renowned for many things—wisdom, magic, their love of teatime—but athletics is most assuredly not on the list. So when Lord Vetinari suggests that the university put forth a football team composed of faculty, students, and staff—or lose the funding that pays for their nine daily meals—the UU wizards find themselves in a quandary. To begin with, they have to figure out just what it is that makes this sport of foot-the-ball so popular with Ankh-Morporkians of all ages and social strata. Then they have to learn how to play it. Oh, and on top of that, they must somehow win a football match without using magic.
	B) William Kamkwamba: The Boy Who Harnessed the Wind When fourteen-year-old William Kamkwamba's Malawi village was hit by a drought, everyone's crops began to fail. Without enough money for food, let alone school, William spent his days in the library . . . and figured out how to bring electricity to his village. Persevering against the odds, William built a functioning windmill out of junkyard scraps, and thus became the local hero who harnessed the wind. Lyrically told and gloriously illustrated, this story will inspire many as it shows how - even in the worst of times - a great idea and a lot of hard work can still rock the world.
	C) Sue Macy: Wheels of Change - How Women Rode the Bicycle to Freedom Take a lively look at women's history from aboard a bicycle, which granted females the freedom of mobility and helped empower women's liberation. Through vintage photographs, advertisements, cartoons, and songs, Wheels of Change transports young readers to bygone eras to see how women used the bicycle to improve their lives. Witty in tone and scrapbook-like in presentation, the book deftly covers early (and comical) objections, influence on fashion, and impact on social change inspired by the bicycle, which, according to Susan B. Anthony, "has done more to emancipate women than anything else in the world."
	D) Alexander McCall Smith: In the Company of Cheerful Ladies Precious Ramotswe, Botswana's premier lady detective, is busier than usual at the detective agency when she discovers an intruder in her house on Zebra Drive—and perhaps even more baffling—a pumpkin on her porch. Her associate, Mma Makutsi, also has a full plate. She's taken up dance lessons, only to be partnered with a man with two left feet. And at Tlokweg Road Speedy Motors, where Mr J.L.B. Matekoni is already overburdened with work, one of his apprentices has run off with a wealthy older woman. But what finally rattles Mma Ramotswe's normally unshakable composure is a visitor who forces her to confront a difficult secret from her past.
	E) Tom Richmond: The Mad Art of Caricature! A Serious Guide to Drawing Funny Faces In The Mad Art of Caricature, award-winning caricaturist and illustrator Tom Richmond shares his secrets of how to create great caricatures. He takes the reader on an artistic journey, examining what really makes a caricature successful, what to look for in a face, and how to draw it. You will also learn how to apply this skill, whether it's drawing live, theme-park-style caricatures, or creating caricature for publication work. Loaded with everything from basic theories and drawing instruction to professional tips and tricks, this book contains something for novices and experts alike.
	F) L. Scheckel: Ask Your Science Teacher - Answers to Everyday Questions Curiosity stirs the soul of every human. Who has not wondered about how the human body works? Can a person drink too much water? How does gravity make things fall? Why do sunflowers always face the sun? Why are tennis balls fuzzy? What happens to the white when snow melts? What does Einstein's famous equation really mean? Why can't we invent a time machine? Do aliens live among us? Over 250 "I always wondered about that" questions and answers are in this book. Browse the contents of this book and discover the secrets of life's most baffling mysteries.
	G) Alan Moore: From Hell FROM HELL is the story of Jack the Ripper, perhaps the most infamous man in the annals of murder. Detailing the events leading up to the Whitechapel killings and the cover-up that followed, FROM HELL is a meditation on the mind of a madman whose savagery and violence gave birth to the 20th century. Often regarded as one of the most significant graphic novels ever published, FROM HELL combines meticulous research with educated speculation, resulting in a masterpiece of historical fiction both compelling and terrifying. This new edition, which has been completely re-mastered, is certainly the finest edition of this comic book produced to date.

Models: A UK Reality TV Hit

Based on: <http://www.time.com/time/world/article/0,8599,1820359,00.html>

- Read the text and the statements on the opposite page.
- Put a tick (✓) in the box next to the correct answer.
- Only one answer is correct in each case.

Debbie van der Putten loves her body, and she isn't afraid to show it off. The 22-year old from Helmond in the Netherlands has appeared on posters throughout Europe for charity groups, worked for a German modeling agency and has posed nude for Playboy. While Van der Putten's flat stomach and striking looks make her attractive, she hasn't exactly got the classic model's body: three years ago, following a bus accident, doctors amputated her right arm. "I wanted to show the Netherlands that you can be beautiful, sexy and disabled," she says. "After my accident I hated mirrors. But now I love them."

Van der Putten has learned to accept her disability and started modeling. But can she help change the fashion world's conception of physical beauty? The BBC explores that idea in Britain's Missing Top Model, a new reality TV series in which Van der Putten and seven other disabled women compete for the chance to win a four-page photo spread in the U.K. edition of Marie Claire magazine. These would-be models include a deaf woman, a paraplegic and a candidate with a prosthetic leg. "Disabled girls are sick of being excluded from society," says Marie O'Riordan, the magazine's editor, who also serves as a judge on the program. "This show tries to shake the industry up a bit."

The controversial program already has the makings of a hit. The series premiere on July 1 attracted half a million viewers in the U.K, which means that in the 9 p.m. time slot BBC Three had 25% more viewers than before. That popularity will surely cause more debate over the show and its influence. Liz Carr, a comic who uses a wheelchair and hosts a BBC radio show on disability called Ouch!, applauds the series for presenting disabled women as beautiful and sexual, and not broken and damaged. Still, she questions if reality TV is the right place to deal with stereotypes. "I'm not sure that seeing disabled women prance around in lingerie and having their bodies objectified is the best way to change representation," she says.

Like in other reality TV shows, the eight women live together in a crowded London penthouse, and, as the competition heats up, their claws come out. But their conflicts and insecurities, which often center around their disabilities, often reflect topics within the disabled community. Sophie, a 23-year old paraplegic and art student, dislikes the deaf candidates because they don't have an obvious physical disability. "As soon as she has the interpreter there, she's the same as any able-bodied person," she says of Kellie, a former Miss Deaf U.K. The deaf candidates have a good reason to be angry. When rushing to a 'go-see' — modelspeak for a job interview — the other contestants do not tell the two deaf models, who are nearly left behind.

What the winner won't get is a guaranteed contract from a top modeling agency, as offered on America's Next Top Model, the most popular TV modeling competition in the world. Those involved with the show remain realistic about how fast the modeling industry might change. "I don't think there's suddenly going to be a flood of disabled girls modeling," says O'Riordan.

But in a competition that requires courage as much as beauty, that may be beside the point.

Have your say

Kari says:

Why does an armless model provide shock value? Because it's not seen too often, and considered imperfect by conventional standards. Kinda like a black or Asian model 50 years ago? Or two women kissing on TV 20 years ago. Bring on the shock value, I say. It's about time some people had their worlds rocked. You don't have to watch the show, if it makes you uncomfortable.

Lora says:

"Reality" TV in general seems to be the problem here. It's unbelievable what they will find to make a series out of and even more unbelievable that most of it develops an actual following.

Sonja says:

I personally feel that it is a modern day freak show disguised in equal opportunity rhetoric. So completely disgusting to me. Are we calling this some kind of progress in human rights or something?

I couldn't decide whether I thought this show was a great vehicle for disabled women or whether it was taking advantage of them.

★Writing Part 3: A Weekend in Munich

CSD – Party, Pumps und Politik 	Der Olympiapark 	Bavaria Filmstadt
Das CSD-Strassenfest ist eines der wichtigsten Events in München in diesem Jahr. Denn hier zeigen Tausende von Menschen ihre Toleranz gegenüber Homosexuellen und Transsexuellen auf Münchens größtem Strassenfest auf dem Mariannenplatz. Traditionell beginnt der Samstag mit politischen Statements, die euch daran erinnern, dass für Toleranz und Respekt besonders gegenüber Homosexuellen und Transsexuellen noch immer gekämpft werden muss. Politik ohne Party geht natürlich nicht. Deshalb erwarten euch Samstag und Sonntag DJanes, DJs und Shows, die euch begeistern werden. Am Sonntag steigt außerdem das legendäre PumpsRace – der weltweit schrillste und verrückteste Wettlauf aller Zeiten auf High Heels. Also diskutiert, tanzt, lacht und feiert auf der größten Pride-Party im süddeutschen Raum. Habt Spaß, zeigt Respekt und kommt zum CSD!	Der Olympiapark im Norden Münchens entwickelte sich nach den Olympischen Spielen 1972 zu einem Naherholungszentrum für die ganze Stadt: Jogger, Radfahrer und Walker drehen hier ihre Runden; Schwimmsportler zieht es in die Olympia-Schwimmhalle; Kulturliebhaber genießen Konzerte oder Kino; Architekturinteressierte bewundern die berühmten Zeltäcker, und Auto-Freaks kommen in der BMW-Welt auf ihre Kosten. Mit über 50 Metern Höhe überragt der Olympiahügel das Parkgelände - ein idealer Ort um die Aussicht über die Dächer Münchens hinaus bis in die Berge zu genießen. Mit dem Lift kann man auf die 185 Meter hohe Aussichtsplattform des Olympiaturms fahren, wo sich auch ein Restaurant befindet, das sich langsam dreht.	Die Bavaria Filmstadt ist eine der größten Filmproduktionsstätten Europas. Hier wird tagtäglich gedreht, so dass man die Entstehung beliebter Kino- und Serienhighlights hautnah erleben kann. Gleichzeitig bietet sie eine Reise durch mehrere Jahrzehnte deutscher und internationaler Filmgeschichte. So kann man an den echten Drehorten berühmter Kinofilme stehen und erfahren, welche verblüffenden Tricks die Macher von Film und Fernsehen einsetzen. Im Bullyversum, einer witzigen und zugleich lehrreichen Mitmachlebenswelt, kommt auch der Spaß nicht zu kurz, denn in einigen Originalkulissen kann man kurze Filmszenen selbst nachspielen. Und schließlich bietet das 4 D Kino ein spannendes Erlebnis für alle Sinne.
